

UL Spray-Applied Fire Resistive Material Examination

The UL Qualified Spray-Applied Fire Resistive Material (SFRM) Contractor examination is designed to assess knowledge of the NFCA Training Manual for SFRM Contractors, the UL Fire Resistance Directories, and the UL Qualified SFRM Contractor program requirements. For successful completion of the examination, individuals must obtain a correct score of 80% or better. This standard of 80% or better correct score on examination results is based on similar industry precedents and provides a benchmark of demonstrated knowledge in the subject area.

Eligibility

To be eligible to sit for the examination, the examinee must be an active employee of a fireproofing contractor conducting business in the SFRM industry. A contractor is considered active in the SFRM business when past, current, or pending contracts include SFRM work or specifications.

Application Process

Eligible examinees must complete an Examination Application in order to sit for the UL Qualified SFRM Contractor examination. Completed applications may be submitted to UL University for testing during scheduled examination events or to request testing outside of these dates.

For requested testing outside of scheduled dates, UL University staff will provide a response to the requesting party within 14 calendar days of application submittal. If the demand for testing is sufficient enough to schedule the testing event, UL University staff will work with the requesting party to select a date and location for exam administration. In those instances where demand for testing is not sufficient to hold a test event, UL University staff will notify the requesting party of the decision, provide upcoming testing dates as an alternative, and refund in full all examination fees submitted. The exam application will be maintained on file for 6 months.

Examination fees must be paid at time of examination application submittal. In the event the examinee is unable to sit for the examination or cancels the scheduled examination event:

- All examination fees for NFCA conference events will be refunded
- Examination fees for all scheduled exam administration events outside of NFCA conferences will be retained by UL University. These fees will be credited to a rescheduled examination when scheduled within 12 months of the cancellation date. Failure to reschedule for an examination within a 12 month period results in forfeiture of submitted exam fees.

Application information will be used to create a student profile in the UL University Learning Management System (LMS). The student profile will be utilized to track examination results and continuing education units awarded as required to maintain a Designated Responsible Individual (DRI) status and contractor qualification under the program.

The personal information provided in this application will NOT be shared with any 3rd parties.

PLEASE NOTE: You must provide positive, picture identification the day of the examination in order to test.
